

Feline - Face Abscess

This cat was presented to Medivet - Waltham Abbey with a large necrotic abscess on his face

The veterinary team resected the dead tissue and drained the pus.

The cat was given a good clean with Hibiscrub. There was a large open wound left behind so it was decided to try a second intention healing but warned the owner that their beloved cat may need to be operated on if it doesn't work.

The cat was sent home with a course of Antirobe.

Two days later the owner brought the cat back in to the practice for a check up. The wound was looking good so the practice started to apply VetGold.

The wound started to heal well and after 12 weeks of treatment with just VetGold, the wound had completely healed!.

“VetGold works brilliantly and so much better for clients where costs are an issue” - Sophie, Medivet.
